♦ CHAPTERS

Some chapters have recently held elections, and a few new names now appear on the inside of the front cover of this issue of the newsletter. Thank you to Denise Carbone for many years of service as President of the Delaware Chapter. The new Delaware Chapter officers are as follows: President, Jennifer Rosner; Secretary/Treasurer, Alice Austin; Program Chair, Hedi Kyle; Newsletter Editor, Sharon Hildebrand. Kelli Piotrowski and Anne Hillam have both completed terms co-chairing the New York Chapter. Thank you to Kelli and Anne for heading the Chapter and for the time and energy put into organizing the Centennial Celebration. Clare Manias and Georgia Southworth have stepped in as co-chairs of the New York Chapter.

♦ EXHIBITION

Reminder: The 100th Anniversary Exhibition Catalog of the GBW can be viewed online at the GBW website. A limited number of bound copies of the catalog are available for purchase. For ordering information please see the GBW website. The catalog may also be purchased in sheets.

Several errors were detected following publication of the 100th Anniversary Exhibition Catalog. Every effort has been made to notify owners of the catalog of the necessary revisions. If you own a catalog and did not receive an errata sheet in the mail, please refer to the errata sheet included with this newsletter.

MINUTES ANNUAL MEETING

GUILD OF BOOK WORKERS, INC.

OCTOBER 13, 2006

The Annual Meeting of the Guild of Book Workers, Inc., was held on Friday, October 13, 2006, at 5:00 p.m. est, in Hosack Hall of the New York Academy of Medicine, New York, New York, during the Centennial Celebration.

President Betsy Palmer Eldridge called the meeting to order and welcomed all present. A printed agenda was distributed. The elected Officers, Standing Committee Chairmen, Chapter Chairmen, and incoming officers present were recognized.

The first-time attendees present at this meeting were asked to stand; two new members stood and introduced themselves.

In memory of the Guild members and professional colleagues who have died recently, Betsy asked those present to stand in silence while the names were read.

The minutes of the October 28, 2005, Annual Meeting were approved, as published in the December, 2005, issue of the Guild Newsletter. Annual reports for the 2005-06 year submitted by the members of the Board were published and included in the August, 2005, issue of the Guild Newsletter.

Motion made and seconded to accept the 2005-06 Annual Reports as published.

MOTION CARRIED.

REPORT OF THE OUTGOING PRESIDENT

1) Betsy asked that members read the Outgoing President’s Report published in the October, 2006, Guild Newsletter.

2) A general report of the Centennial Celebration finances was presented. After expenses incurred for the event, the remainder of funds raised from auctions will go to producing post prints.

It was asked if the color poster displayed on the podium would be for sale. Betsy will check with the local Host Committee. A question was raised if there were funds left for corrections to the Anniversary Catalog. It was incorrectly stated in the catalog that Bill Anthony was the founder of the Standards Seminars. The general consensus was that Don Etherington founded the Seminars. Those present discussed the origin of the Standards Seminars, and a listing of the first Seminar chairmen followed. It was suggested that an errata sheet be printed. Concerns about distribution of the errata sheets were raised. Karen Hanmer agreed to take responsibility for correcting the errors in the catalog. A future issue of the Guild Newsletter will have a notice concerning this subject.

Certificates of Appreciation were presented to outgoing officers Nancy Lev-Alexander (Standards Seminar Chairman and 2001 Host Committee Chairman for Standards in Alexandria); Peter Verheyen (Exhibitions Chairman); and Betsy Palmer Eldridge (President).

Betsy presented James Reid-Cunningham with a gift of a magic wand as incoming President.

REPORT OF THE INCOMING PRESIDENT

1) Jim thanked Betsy for her service to the Guild and noted that Andrew Huot has been appointed to fill the vacancy of Vice President.

2) Standards Seminar 2007—Plans are in the works to reduce the cost and provide more demonstrations, perhaps in a format similar to Bookbinding 2000 held in Rochester. The 2007 Standards Seminar in Dallas, Texas, will address these issues. The meeting will be held at a conference center with a low cost of lodging (approximately $89/night), a shuttle service, and a Texas BBQ in place of the usual banquet. The structure of the program will include three longer demonstrations in a large lecture hall with cameras that would be attended by all participants, and four shorter presentations. This should make it easier to recruit presenters. In 2007 presenters will include: Chela Metzger, Roberta Lavadour, and Stuart Brockman. Kitty Maryatt will present the Foundations Sessions.

3) Publications—In the coming year the Guild will look at the content and format of publications. Plans are to include post prints from this Centennial Celebration in the Journal.

Questions/Comments from Those Present

• Concern was expressed that if the Standards Seminar format is changed to that followed at Bookbinding 2000, new members might be shy about asking questions of the presenters in front of a large audience, and that this type of format was tried, unsuccessfully, in Iowa.

• The current idea is to try the format again with more sophisticated technology. Ideally a more polished presentation video will be produced. The camera operators will either be trained in what aspects of the presentation to zoom in on, or perhaps a binder will be assigned to stay with the camera operator and give directions. It was noted that this format change is not permanent.

• Suggestions/comments included:
  -- pass out cards for questions that would be forwarded to the presenters.
  -- arrange small discussions where older members and younger members have lunch together.
  -- student fees are too high.
  -- discounted registration fee was offered for this Centennial Event and scholarship monies have been available in the past with funds raised from the auctions divided equally between scholarships and the 100th Anniversary Fund.
  -- need for attracting members and creating more publicity for the Guild—Eric Alstrom responded, noting plans to do more outreach through university departments.
  -- need to look at funding agencies for scholarships, travel money, and general grant funding—a response noted that the Board has discussed this issue in the past, but has no experience with development and will have to look to the membership for help.

• More of the newly updated Guild brochures, which were included in the Centennial registration packets, are available from Catherine Burkhard, Secretary.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

Y’all Come!

Members of the Lone Star Chapter collectively say: “Y’All Come!” to the 27th Annual Seminar on Standards of Excellence in Hand Bookbinding in North Texas, October 18–21, 2007. (FYI, “y’all” is pronounced “yawl.”) The seminar, A Passport to Texas, will be held at the American Airlines Training and Conference Center, located just south of DFW Airport and mid-way between Dallas and Fort Worth. (web: aaconferencecenter.dolce.com)

Though the center sports the name of American Airlines, it is owned and operated by Dolce International, a global hospitality company with 22 properties in the United States, Canada and Europe. It is used by the airline along with many corporations and organizations for conferences, meetings and training sessions.

Due to the Conference Center’s offerings, the Seminar registration fee will be inclusive of all meals, which will be enjoyed on-site. (Sleeping rooms will be paid for separately.)

The Seminar will get started with a Foundation Session presented by Kitty Maryatt focusing on the issues faced making limited edition letterpress books.

A new twist on watching the demonstrations of our talented presenters is that all participants will attend one plenary session for each demonstration in the conference center’s Flagship Auditorium. The auditorium is tiered, so there is not one bad seat in the house. Closed-circuit cameras will capture intricate work to project onto a large screen for excellent viewing. The three large session presenters are:

Chela Metzger, Lecturer, School of Information, University of Texas at Austin will be covering the construction of medieval stationer’s bindings, including the planning and execution of decoration, especially Spanish lacing patterns.

Roberta Lavadour, Oregon-based Book Artist.

Stuart Brockman, England-based Fine Binder will demonstrate gold tooling on leather.

There will also be concurrent mini-sessions for participants to attend based on their interests. Local area tours and activities are in the planning phase.

The Lone Star Chapter selected this location for a number of reasons:

Flying into DFW Airport is easy from nearly any point in the U.S., Canada, Mexico and even Europe. (Our Chamber of Commerce claims Dallas/Fort Worth as the center of North America.)

- Every seat in the center is comfortable—no hard hotel chairs.
- Sleeping room costs are lower than most hotels. Participants that usually share a room may choose to splurge for their own room at these prices.
- Located mid-way between Dallas and Fort Worth, participants that choose to rent autos will have easy freeway access to either destination.

Additionally—and importantly—the planning committee anticipates that the total cost per participant for attending the 2007 seminar will be somewhat less than an average conference for past seminars. Several factors combine to make this possible: free airport transportation and center parking, inclusive meals and lower sleeping room rates.

October is one of the most pleasant weather months in North Texas with the average daytime high of 79°F and low of 56°F.

For those desiring to extend their stay in the Lone Star State, Austin is an easy 195-mile drive south; San Antonio is just 79 more miles from Austin. Houston is 250 miles south; Southwest Airlines flies between Houston and Dallas every hour.

GBW Centennial Celebration

Hundreds of book workers came from near and far to mark the historic occasion of the first 100 years of GBW. Postprints from the symposium will appear in a future issue of the GBW Journal, the centennial exhibition can be viewed on our website, articles from attendees and photos appear in this issue, and the symposium video will be available in the near future.

J. Pierpont Morgan Library Tour
Amanda Nelsen

A tour of the recently renovated Book and Paper Conservation lab at the J. Pierpont Morgan Library was a wonderful way to begin the three-day annual meeting of GBW. The autumn sun gently filled the lab, while the touring group eyed the freshly matted Rembrandt print set out under the high angled wooden beams. It was inspiring to be in such a well supported and beautifully finished lab and clearly October is a great time to be in New York City.

As a newcomer to the Guild of Book Workers, I was unsure what to expect at the Centennial Celebration, but ultimately enjoyed three days of visits, lectures, and entertainment. Overall, the lectures held at the New York Academy of Medicine were informative and entertaining. The historical details and diversity of topics spanning the twentieth century was daunting, yet a great way to place people and work in the context of the guild. I especially enjoyed the New York regional presentation from Mindell Dubansky, whom I fondly remembered from our tour at the Met. While I look forward to future gatherings with... hands-on learning and numerous demonstrations, it was fun to catch the momentum of the guild at this anniversary celebration.

The opening receptions at the Grolier Club and Center for the Book Arts were helpful in placing names that I had heard several times with faces of leading bookmakers. Not only were the treats scrumptious, the centennial exhibition was lovely and it was nice to have a space to connect with others, both new and old to the guild. A personal highlight was the Albert Miniature Book Exhibition at the Grolier Club which I found to be exquisite. While small books are usually adorable, the creative techniques and materials employed with many of the books seemed to delight and impress many viewers.

The finale dinner cruise on The Spirit of New York was a great end cap for the event. I was happy to find a few dancers among the binders, many of whom seemed to enjoy a good dance floor as much or even more than me. As a student, preparing for a lucrative career in the world of books, the GBW Centennial Celebration was an exciting introduction to many people whose work I admire and an affirmation of the fact that good people make great books.

SOME THOUGHTS ON THE CENTENNIAL Lisa Clark

Who will you run into next? Who haven’t you seen in ages? Who are you eager to catch up with? Making connections, sharing stories, meeting people whose names you’ve been hearing for years: these are the real pleasures of any Guild gathering, and the Centennial was no exception. It’s always a heady experience at Standards to be surrounded by book workers for three days straight, and to be among people who actually understand what you mean when you talk about your work. But this time was especially exciting because the Guild was celebrating itself and taking the time to appreciate its history.

The presentations confirmed what I had always felt about this field. After hearing the histories of the different regional chapters I got a clear sense that we truly are all connected in a vast, supporting network that stretches back through the decades. We heard the same simple message in each region: this person set up a studio in this city and trained these students, and they trained these others, and they went on to work in these institutions, and so on.

It’s no wonder then that every person you meet at a Guild event has either worked with someone you know, or studied with someone else you know, or is great friends with someone else. This sense of community is one of the main reasons that I have always felt so lucky to work in this profession.

NEW YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY TOUR
Cris Takacs

The New York Historical Society (NYHS) is the oldest museum in New York City and the second oldest museum in the entire country. The host of the NYHS tour was Alan Balicki, Senior Conservator. Alan began by leading us up to the Henry Luce III Center that stores and displays 40,000 pieces of the permanent collection.

Anything non-textile or paper is housed on steel shelves behind plate glass. Visitors can use audio tours to learn about the items and conservators can keep an eye on things and watch for problems. Everything from pieces from the World Trade center to Tiffany lamps and Duncan Fife’s toolbox are there for viewing. We also visited conservation labs scattered throughout the building. The society has a complete set of Audubon watercolors purchased, “through public subscription in 1863” from Mrs. Audubon.

Monica Feeney and Amanda Nelsen
Audubon’s handwritten checklist for the paintings was on display in the conservation lab. Past curators have used it for their own exhibit checklist. An intern had just completed scraping off years of ballpoint pen marks and infilling the weak areas with pulp.

Alan ended the tour at the Chelsea Jeans exhibit. The store Chelsea Jeans was near ground zero and the owner had encased 50 sq ft of the store to commemorate September 11. When he lost the lease he donated the display to NYHS, and Mr. Balicki was in charge of moving, preserving, and finally displaying the 9/11 memorial.

Marbling

THE SHELF LIFE OF MATERIALS

Iris Nevins

Often the topic of the shelf life of marbling materials comes up. Sometimes, as is the case with a finicky art such as marbling, things don’t work right. Rather than wonder if certain materials have gone bad, and assume it could be anything, it seems a good idea to discuss what gets better or worse with age.

Let’s begin with alum. Whether aluminum sulphate or aluminum potassium sulphate—the two best forms of alum for marbling—it will not go bad in its dry state. In theory once it is mixed it should remain stable, but it can get murky with paper fibers that collect on sponges used to apply the alum. It should still work indefinitely, but it is safest to mix up just what you will need for one day’s work to be safe. Sometimes if kept in a jar in a cold room, a wonderful crystal might form at the bottom. I have seen crystals as large as a ½ inch before, almost like a diamond. Because this is composed of alum, it weakens the solution, so save the crystal for fun and make up a new batch. This will rarely happen.

The size, generally carrageenan, seems to keep its specialists in Japanese papers since 1982 strength in powder form as well, as does methyl cellulose. Once made into liquid form, the carrageenan will go off in a few days at most or at least lose its viscosity. This is not the case with methyl cellulose. Then again, the cellulose can get very murky. It also tends not to work well with watercolor marbling paints, but quite well with acrylics. Carrageenan does well with both. Again, I suggest making just as much size as you need for the day, and make sure that you have a pleasant and clear bath to work on.

Ox Gall only gets better with age. I would never worry about ox gall going bad.

Water colors can turn if they are mixed with ox-gall and allowed to sit for a long time, especially in a hot room. They have the tendency to get stringy and moldy.

Commercial acrylics in a tube keep quite well. If in more liquid form, over time I have noted the pigment can separate into hard lumps that are hard to mix back in. I'd give acrylics six months to a year. This varies between colors and brands. You just have to check before you marble.

As for alumed papers, if you marble and alum as you go, and use a damp paper, it is best to use it within an hour. Maybe a little longer in cold weather. In many cases they may still be good for an extra day. This varies from one type of paper to the next. If they get dry, they generally stop holding the pigment to the paper.

If working with pre-alummed and dried papers, the papers must be alumed and allowed to dry overnight in a room with 55% or less humidity. This, within my experimentations for nearly three decades, seems to be the cutoff humidity. You may then stack them to flatten and they will be good indefinitely, even for years, but only if stored in an equally dry environment. I have noticed, in rainy summer months when the humidity goes up, the papers don't hold the colors as well, so use a dehumidifier or store them in a dryer spot. They seem to return to normal, even if in a large stack, after a day in a less humid environment.
