This is a vast globe, which makes attendance at every exhibition or research in many collections difficult, if not impossible. However, thanks to the growing number of online resources, viewers can sample a wide range of book-related art forms from the comfort of their own arm chairs. GBW urges you to take in as many live exhibits as possible, but when a seven-hour plane ride just isn’t in the cards, you can always click and be amazed. Following are a few of the online exhibits currently running.

Many of the more than 200 books in this exhibit offer examples of the elements that make up a book’s binding, such as sewing, endleaves, cover attachment, clasps and tooling. Readers learn what these elements are and can view specimens dating from different eras and locales. Also, numerous examples highlight historic national technical styles and “bespoke” bindings for famous collectors, as well as specialty styles such as those with fully silk-embroidered covers. Examples date from as early as the 12th century and come down to the end of the 20th. The entire show is arranged in virtual cases, represented by 26 thumbnail images.

With the whirlwind of the Centennial over, the Board now has a calm period during which we can address other issues.

I have formed a new committee to advise the Board on awards. We currently have two awards, the Laura Young Award for contributions to GBW, and Honorary Membership. The board has decided to change the title of Honorary Membership to Lifetime Achievement Award (including Honorary Membership). We felt this was a more descriptive title, because in fact the award is given to someone for a lifetime of achievement in bookwork or research. The new committee is headed by Barbara Kretzmann, who received the Laura Young Award in New York, along with Mark Andersson and Frank Lehmann. I appreciate their volunteering for this task, and look forward to their recommendations.

The board also discussed the issue of scholarships to Standards. In New York, Bill Drendell suggested to me that we rethink our current requirement that scholarships go only to those who have been members for two years; this policy helps needy members, but excludes most students. Bill thought that having a student scholarship would attract new, younger members to the Guild, and I can't agree more. The board voted to have two scholarships to Standards this year, one for a member and one for a fulltime student. The student can be studying any subject; the scholarship isn’t reserved for binding or book art students only. The only requirement is full time study.

Dorothy Africa has been busy working on the GBW Journal, with a new issue in the works covering the presentations at Standards in Portland. She and Cara Schlesinger are already assembling the post-prints of the Centennial Conference, and many of the presenters have already made contributions. We are looking into using different publishers for our Journal, and hope to have a larger, more colorful Journal with more illustrations, beginning with the post-prints. We intend to use the money leftover in the centennial fund to underwrite the cost of this expanded version covering the conference.

Preparations for Standards in Texas are continuing, and we hope to have a full line-up of presenters to announce in the near future. Standards in 2008 will be a joint meeting with the Canadian Bookbinders and Book Artists Guild in Toronto, and Chris McAfee is currently working with site host Mercedes Walton to find a hotel for us. This is a very difficult task in Toronto, where costs are prohibitive, but it looks to be a great location for Standards. Stay tuned.

So far, I’m having a blast as GBW president.

27th Annual GBW Seminar

Keep in mind that A Passport to Texas—the 27th Annual Seminar on Standards of Excellence in Hand Bookbinding—will take place in North Texas, October 18–21, 2007. The seminar will be held at the American Airlines Training and Conference Center, located just south of DFW Airport and mid-way between Dallas and Fort Worth. (web: aaconferencecenter.dolce.com)

The Seminar registration fee will be inclusive of all meals, which will be enjoyed on-site. (Sleeping rooms will be paid for separately.)

Kitty Maryatt will present the Foundation Session, focusing on the issues faced making limited edition letterpress books.

At this year’s Seminar all participants will attend one plenary session for each demonstration in the conference center’s Flagship Auditorium. The auditorium is tiered and closed-circuit cameras will capture intricate work to project onto a large screen for viewing. The three large session presenters are:

- Chela Metzger, Lecturer, School of Information, University of Texas at Austin, will be covering the construction of medieval stationer’s bindings, including the planning and execution of decoration, especially Spanish lacing patterns.
- Roberta Lavadour, Oregon-based Book Artist.
- Stuart Brockman, England-based Fine Binder will demonstrate gold tooling on leather.

There will also be concurrent mini-sessions for participants to attend based on their interests. Local area tours and activities are in the planning phase.

Additionally, and importantly, the planning committee anticipates that the total cost per participant for attending the 2007 seminar will be somewhat less than an average conference for past seminars. Several factors combine to make this possible: free airport transportation and center parking, inclusive meals and lower sleeping room rates.

October is one of the most pleasant weather months in North Texas with the average daytime high of 79°F and low of 56°F.

For those desiring to extend their stay in the Lone Star State, Austin is an easy 195-mile drive south; San Antonio is just 79 more miles from Austin. Houston is 250 miles south; Southwest Airlines flies between Houston and Dallas every hour. Watch for full details and registration info in the June Newsletter.

NORTHWEST
Knife Making and Sharpening with Jeff Peachy

A few months ago as I was dragging one of my many dull paring knives across a hunk of leather I was wondering … how am I ever going to transcend this dullness and learn the mystical art of knife sharpening? Then low and behold as if by design I learned that Jeff Peachy the legend himself, tool designer and maestro of knife sharpening was going to be in town the weekend of January 11th and 12th at the Portland Waldorf School in Milwaukee, Oregon aka Portland and minutes from my house! Talk of your coincidences. I signed up.

That weekend came and armed with all of my bookbinding knives including scissors, grass shears and pruning loppers I joined 11 others in the PWS wood shop to begin unraveling the mysteries of the razor knife edge. The class which was broken up into 4 parts dealt with terminology, examining a variety of knives/cutting edges, a full discussion on sharpening systems, and demystifying the sharpening steps nec-necessary to not only creating leather paring knives but maintaining the edges of all cutting tools as well. In short a load of information.

What coalesced all of the information was fashioning our own paring knife from a hacksaw blade. Jeff demonstrated how to shape the edge on a belt sander to a 13 degree bevel then using simple abrasive films (high tech sandpaper) we finished the edge to a high polished razor edge capable of paring leather with one smooth stroke. That was magic. Throw in a how to on modifying a spoke shave for leather paring and this workshop hit all the high notes for me.

Rigid Page Binding with Alicia Bailey

If you have ever sat staring glumly at a stack of boards, glass, tiles, or metal sheets, trying to figure out how best to turn them into a book, Alicia Bailey has some answers for you. The Denver-based book artist and sculptor visited Portland February 17 and 18 to give a two-day workshop on binding rigid pages. On Saturday, we completed models of three basic glued structures: Hedi Kyle’s “Mongolian” binding using Tyvek, an exposed hinge binding using book cloth, and a reverse board book in which Tyvek hinges are sandwiched inside the pages. On Sunday, we explored two sewn structures: a single-sheet Coptic binding, and Daniel Kelm’s elegantly flexible wire binding. Throughout, Alicia shared practical insight into materials, methods, and aesthetic considerations. Perhaps best of all, each of the structures is simple and sturdy enough to lend itself to further experiment and variation.

Call For Entries for INSPIRED DESIGN: THE MENTORING STAMP

NEW ENGLAND CHAPTER SET BOOK EXHIBITION

The Smith College Mortimer Rare Book Room is hosting the New England Chapter exhibition of a set book, Lance Hidy: Designing the Mentoring Stamp. Bookbinders, book artists, calligraphers, paper decorators, and other book workers are invited to create a work inspired by Hidy’s book. The exhibition will run from August through December 2008 at Smith College. This non-juried show, open to members of the New England Chapter, will offer three awards for entries selected by Lance Hidy, Michael Russem (designer and publisher of the book), and Martin Antonetti (curator of rare books at Smith College). Additionally, plans are in the works for producing a full color exhibition catalogue and for one or more gallery talks and/or receptions.

Lance Hidy, a well-known artist and typographer, created a stamp for the U.S. Postal Service in 2001. Lance Hidy: Designing the Mentoring Stamp is the story of that process, along with Hidy’s observations about design, photography, color, aesthetics, and his own typeface, Penumbra. The book, designed and published in 2007 by Michael Russem at Kat Ran Press, is printed in four sections (a total of 48 pages) on Mohawk Superfine (80 lb) paper and includes numerous color illustrations of Hidy’s work. Those not familiar with the work of Lance Hidy can see the mentoring stamp at: www.usps.com/news/2001/philetelic/sr02_003.htm, or his posters at his own website: www.lancehidy.com

Only fifty text blocks in sheets are available for $45.00 each (s/h included. Limit 2 copies). The exhibition fee of $35.00 must also be paid prior to the mailing of the text block. You must be a member of (or join) the New England Chapter to participate.

To order the text block, members must send full contact information and payment to Barbara Adams Hebard, NE Chapter Exhibitions Coordinator, at 36 Cutter Street, Melrose, MA 02176. Text Block Requests and payments must be received by June 15, 2007. An entry form with specifics for submitting your work will be sent to all applicants. Completed work will be due February 2008.

The exhibition is being coordinated by Barbara Adams Hebard and Barbara B. Blumenthal. We welcome any questions you may have about this exhibition.

GBW Exhibition Review
Antonia Nelson

I know it must sound a little self-serving for me to review the 100th Anniversary Exhibition since my book is included in the show. But I think as one of the artists, I do have a unique perspective and a certain expectation about how I would like to see artist’s books displayed. The Museum of Fine Arts at the University of Utah provided a wonderful space for the show, and I felt that the Book Arts Program arranged the books to their best possible advantage, short of being able to handle them. The books are set up in large plexi-glass cases enabling the viewer to walk around the books, seeing inside to at least one page spread—a sample of further content inside. The spaciousness of the galleries allows books to be grouped in a pleasing, logical order without being crowded. It is possible to take time with them.

The fine leather bindings, including inlay, onlay, and fine tooling, always leave me in awe, even viewed through plexiglass. These traditional crafts have been represented by some amazing artists most notably James Brockman’s piece, The Special Bindings of Gwasg Greynog which left me wondering, “How did he do that?” I also loved Brenda Parsons’ Two Tales: Rip Van Winkle and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow; the brilliant illustrative onlay was simply beautiful.

The majority of the show seems to be represented with artist’s books of every possible sort, the skill and diversity of which is mind-boggling.

Again, craftsmanship is the key to the beauty of all of these pieces. Each its own work of art. My favorite case had a bird theme with a nice juxtaposition of four types of books: Susan Collards’ wooden construction, The Winter Palace, fully opened so all parts of the collage could be seen; Chela Metzger’s parchment binding, feathered and housed in it own parchment nest; Barbara Metz’s folded-book constructions that were owl themed; and the beautiful monotype reproductions in Valerie Carrigan’s large scale book Messenger.

Overall, even in its diversity, this show can only provide a sample of the work that book artists are doing nowadays. But I love that this book arts show is here and in our Museum and accessible for many newcomers to the art we all love.

Calligraphy
Nancy Leavitt

October 2006, I delivered a talk entitled, A Legacy of Letters, 1906-2006, at the Guild of Book Workers centennial celebration held in New York City. The talk traced the influences of calligraphic study in the United States from the late 19th to the 21st century, exploring the work of GBW calligraphers during the first century of its existence and looking at the changing role of the calligrapher into the next century. It was a happy coincidence that 2006 was also the centenary of the publication of two important lettering books, Writing and Illuminating and Lettering by Edward Johnston in London and Unterricht in ornamentaler Schrift by Rudolph von Larish in Vienna.

My presentation included information gathered from the following questionnaire sent out to calligraphic organizations across the country. The information collected was analyzed in overall trends and I have compiled the answers after each question, adding my comments at the end. I found it most heartening to read about the activities of different calligraphic organizations across the country and thought you might be interested to read them as well.

Brief questionnaire:
1. Guild name (optional):
   These answers are based on 13 respondents from over 40 surveyed.
2. Year established:
   Years of establishment ranged from 1949-2000 with average year of incorporation about 1977.
3. What is your current membership number?
   Group membership numbers ranged from 25 to 650.
4. Have your membership numbers increased or decreased over the last 10 to 15 years?
   Six organizations have decreased in membership, five have increased in membership and two have held steady.
5. What are your thoughts on why or why not your membership numbers have changed?
   Decreases are due to the following reasons in order of reporting:
   * People are busy, more women in workforce
   * People want to try things once & move on (other crafts have moved in—scrap booking, stamping)
   * Young people are difficult to attract
   * Loss of longtime active older members
   * Guild unable to meet the needs of its members
   * The computer—easy access to calligraphic fonts
   * Interest in calligraphy in a down cycle

   Increases are due to the following in order of reporting:
   * Attracted by website, newsletter, and classes and by active recruitment
   * The Internet has helped garner and inform membership with photos, events, and instruction
   * Larger calligraphic organizations gain membership when smaller groups disband
   * Members want to take more classes to become better designers
Interesting group-sponsored events and calligraphy conferences

6. What proportion of your membership is made up of hobbyists? professionals?

These percentages range from 70/30 to 95/5% with the average of 80/20% hobbyists to professionals. Many groups reported that their membership is composed of highly skilled hobbyists.

7. Do your members travel to other locals for classes or do you offer a variety of classes in your own area?

Nine groups reported offering between 1 and 6 major workshops per year by visiting teachers.

Eight groups reported offering ongoing workshops each year taught by their members and that their members travel to take workshops.

Several groups report that they offer a small demo or workshop at every meeting and offer annual calligraphic functions.

8. What concerns you about the future of your guild?

The biggest concern reported by all calligraphic groups is the lack of new volunteers stepping forward to take on responsibilities including organizational work, holding office, and the concern that the same loyal members are becoming burnt out with carrying all of the responsibility.

Half of the groups responded that they had difficulty attracting and keeping new recruits.

Several groups expressed a need for teachers to conduct ongoing beginner classes.

Several of you lamented at the lack of interest in calligraphy.

One respondent expressed concern that the organizational finances are increasing and are not matched by membership fees.

9. Do you publish a newsletter?
Yes—11; No—1; Intermittent—1

Please feel free to write any further comments about your guild here.

Several groups mentioned the importance of socialization at their group functions. Most groups support community outreach programs by offering services, classes, demonstrations and work.

Education of group members was listed as the most important function of the organization – to share and pass on the knowledge of calligraphy as well as showcase members work in group exhibitions. Several groups invest in their new members by pairing them with older members or by offering scholarships to attend workshops or conferences.

All of the above serve to promote the work and development of calligraphy while simultaneously educating the public.

Comments:
Although membership in calligraphy guilds seems to be holding, societies all have similar concerns including difficulty in recruiting people to hold offices and volunteer positions as fewer young people are joining calligraphic organizations. Today, calligraphers are fortunate to have many tangible advantages, especially new and readily available art materials and supplies and limitless technologies for recording, producing, and promoting artwork. A world of possibility (and distraction) is available to us through the eye of the internet. And yet as the study of lettering has all but disappeared from higher institutions serious students must piecemeal a study program from weekend workshops and an occasional week-long class taught by traveling teachers.

Calligraphic organizations have made many contributions to the revival, growth, and perpetuation of hand lettering in this country and beyond since the late 1940s. They have added a fresh and dynamic approach to lettering while maintaining a foundation in traditional lettering. For calligraphy to survive in any educational program, calligraphic organization, or for any individual practitioner to succeed, I believe we must:

1. Have an understanding and working knowledge of design principles and elements
2. Draw knowledge & inspiration from the historical past
3. Have a purpose and goal to the work
4. Enjoy the spirit and collaboration with like arts, such as writers, printers, papermakers, bookbinders.

In conclusion, I believe that members within and between calligraphic organizations would benefit by discussing some of these questions among your membership.

METALS SUPERMARKET
If you are looking for book weights, this is a great resource—Metals Supermarkets. Founded in 1985, Metals Supermarkets, The Convenience Stores of the Metal Industry, is the world’s largest supplier of small quantity metals. They have over 80 locations in Canada, US and the UK. Visit their website: www.metalssupermarket.com

There are no minimum orders on any type of metal that they have in stock. There is a buy what you only need policy. You simply purchase exactly the size and shape you need. They also have a reference guide listing the products they carry—aluminum, copper, brass and stainless steel.

I first purchased from them when I was attending graduate school at Columbia College Chicago. The product I recommend is cold finished steel C1018 flats. If you are looking for a specific weight, their staff can help you out. Metals Supermarket custom cut C1018 1” x 1-1/2” in several lengths 4”, 6”, 8”, 10,” and 12”. Once you have them, you can cover them with book cloth, but I would recommend having them hard plated. Find a local shop that specializes in hard plating. Plating resists rust. The bright shiny surface can be wiped clean with a damp cloth. It is an ideal finish for those who are a bit messy with their glue or if you’re just too tired to clean up, just scrape off the dry glue the next morning and they’ll look brand new!

The various sizes are great for making boxes, or if you’re attending a workshop take the smaller sizes with you. Another advantage is that you can use a rare earth magnet. When making your trays for clamshell boxes use the weights as a support and attach a rare earth magnet on the inside to keep your walls perpendicular until the glue sets up.

For a hard surface when using your backing hammer to make clasps or to fasten cords once laced into the boards I recommend HR Steel Plate .25” thick. A piece that is 12 x 18 will run around $25.

MIDORI KUNIKATA - COCKRAM

COLD GOLD TECHNIQUE
Monday 16th 10—4 $200
Introduction to using gold leaf on leather, paper and vellum. This one day work shop explores three techniques for applying gold leaf to a variety of different materials using traditional and innovative methods.

THE HAKO CHITSU
with a built-in box
Thursday 19th 10—4 $200
This style of box case provides ideal storage and display for the various sizes and shapes of books and papers. Students will construct the box using several traditional Japanese methods and designs.

EDGE DECORATION
Tuesday 17th 10—4 $200
Contemporary practices for edge decoration. The workshop members are introduced and will be encouraged to decorate the edges of a text block using a variety of contemporary practices.

FORWARDING
Saturday 21st — Sunday 22nd 10—4 $500
Starting with end papers, students will learn a new method forwarding that does not involve sewing on tapes. Techniques covered included 'Secondary Sewing', a new hollow construction called the 3/4 Hollow Leather jointed endpapers and full linen board attachment. This workshop is intended for bookbinders with some experience.

KARIBARI AND URAUCHI
Wednesday 16th 10—4 $200
Karibari is a traditional Japanese Dying Board. This equipment is very useful for making paper backed fabric, stretched paper and some conservation works. Students will construct Karibari that use traditional methods with modern materials. After this practical workshop, the tutor will give a demonstration of the use of the 'Karibari', pasting a paper backing onto papers or fabric - a traditional method called 'Urauchi' using a variety of contemporary practices.

The classes are offered at the new Paper Dragon Bindery in Chelsea, and are accompanied by an exhibition of Studio 5, London. The one day workshops are offered individually at $200, but sign-up for all four and you get them all for $500.

PROUD SPONSOR OF THE SOCIETY OF BOOKBINDERS 2007 COMPETITION (RESTORATION CATEGORY), YORK, ENGLAND
Publications

The Book of Origins: A Survey of American Fine Binding traveling exhibition features twenty contemporary fine bindings by ten American binders. The group includes established masters as well as gifted emerging artists. Two works are presented by each binder, their binding in response to the set Book of Origins text, and an additional example of their work.

A 32-page, full color catalog of this exhibition is now available. Designed by Julia Leonard, designer of the Guild of Book Workers 100th Anniversary Exhibition catalog, it depicts all 20 works, plus binding descriptions and biographical statements by each binder. Order information online at: http://library.syr.edu/digital/exhibits/b/bookoforigins/catalog.htm

The exhibition will be at Special Collections, Michigan State University Libraries in East Lansing, Michigan March 23 - June 1, 2007. The entire exhibition and travel schedule is at http://library.syr.edu/digital/exhibits/b/bookoforigins/
